NEWS OF OREGON STATED IN BRIEF

TELEGRAPHIC CHRONICLE OF STATE HAPPENINGS.

LAND TO BE THROWN OPEN

Sixty Homesteads, of 20 Acres Each, in Umatilla Reclamation Project Ready.

Pendleton—Sixty homesteads, of 20 acres each, on the Umatilla reclamation project, in the west end of this county, are to be thrown open for settlement some time during the winter.
This is the announcement received from the headquarters of the reclamation service. These homesteads are located from a mile and a half to two miles and a half north of the town of Hermiston and the land is considered among the best on the entire project.

Considerable expense attaches to securing one of the homesteads, but it is believed the rush for the land will be general and that several hundred men will stand in line before the door of the LaGrande land office or days before the opening, waiting for a chance to file. The government will demand approximately $200 of each settler. This will include the filing fee, the annual maintenance fee, the first year's payments on the water rights and other small expenses.

Race land adjoining to be opened for settlement is now selling from $125 to $200 per acre.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sanders occupants of the dwelling, ascribe the strange manipulations to an electric storm.

Geo. R. Perry, a brother of Mrs.

Sanders, has a different story. He declares little Ernest Harpe, the 11-year-old grandchild of Mrs. Sanders, who lives with her is the innocent cause in that he is "possessed of the devil." R. Sutherland, owner of the house, accepts the occult theory and has warned his tenants to find another home for the lad or vacate his

WOMAN AND FASHION

Coat For the Schoolgirl.

Every girl who contemplates going away to school this fall will require a serviceable coat to wear in cold or stormy days or to cover up her pretty evening dress when going to some

IN BLUE CHEVY.

class festivity. The one pictured is a very stunning little affair in blue chevy, and the girl who selects this model will always look well dressed.

Cost of Costume Must Be Smart.

Too much attention cannot be given to the back of the gown, and now that fashions are changing it is all important to note how the back shall be cut and draped, for the smartest of gowns will prove failures if this is not carefully planned. The high waisted belt is a becoming fashion to most women —that is, the belt high at the back and the style will not be ousted from popular favor until the last moment.

In fact, it is only a very short time since the majority of dressmakers have realized how becoming it is and have striven to carry it out correctly.

Lover and lover is the waist line drooping, and the line of the back is at the moment in the exaggerated rendering absurdly grotesque. Some of the latest models show a pointed long waist line at the back, below which the material of the skirt is gathered on a cord. It is a fashion that would make the most beautiful and graceful woman look awkward and ugly, but it is being attempted, and so the only hope is that a radical modification will be demanded.

For the Trotter Frock.

For the tailored suit—the smart frock material will undoubtedly hold first place. Crepe surfaice serge will probably be the most worth material that will be seen where well-gowned women congregate. Homespun—a rougher material than crepe serge—with a perceptible hole weave on the surface are being shown both here and abroad. There is some talk of the revival of ribbed, a material on the order of homspun, only more so. Bedford rib is another familiar fabric among the new arrivals. It is lighter in weight than the old fine version, a coarse weave, they call it broad.

It is very good looking, and so in its prototy whole, cotton cloth, a Bedford rib with a slightly raised rib. It looks a little like the robe de chenal, or "robe de force," that is one of the materials which they have been using in Paris lately. The new fall materials, however, is heavier and more easily worn than that of the summer.

The Widening Shoulders.

Everywhere one sees some manner of drapery that will give width to the shoulders. Flicane has returned. Broad-elles are extraordinarily wide and sway well over the arm seam.

Drapery that were recently old-fashioned are now used on the smartest gowns. The entire effect seems to be to hide the armhole, when last winter just the reverse was true.
